

Rikhil Sharma <rsharma@theowlfund.com>

DRAM Major Movement Update (24-Aug-2026)

1 message

Christian Renaldo <crenaldo@theowlfund.com>

Mon, Aug 24, 2026 at 11:54 PM

To: fall2026of@theowlfund.com

Cc: Cindy Axelrod <cindy.axelrod@temple.edu>, David Bernal <dbernal@theowlfund.com>, sghayal@theowlfund.com

Good Evening Fund,

Today, shares of Roundhill Memory ETF (DRAM) fell 5.9%, underperforming the SPX, which fell 0.3%.

Shares of DRAM fell as investors reacted negatively after Samsung announced an estimated 90.0-110.0 trillion won ($65.0-80.0 billion) shareholder return for 2026. Investors were disappointed after Samsung didn't indicate any plans to raise its existing shareholder return policy or to cancel treasury shares, unlike SK Hynix, which increased its shareholder return policy and planned to cancel 40.0 trillion won ($28.6 billion) in treasury stock. Additionally, investors have taken profits following the significant run-up in memory stocks while taking a more risk-off approach ahead of NVDA's earnings, set for Wednesday after market close.

Our team remains bullish on the memory sector as constrained capacity and accelerating AI demand continue to create sustained pricing power for DRAM and HBM suppliers. Our team is a HOLD.

Best,
The Information Technology Team